

Audio Visual

Broadcast

Audio-visual production is a major force in communication and advocacy, communicating to specialist and mass audiences through broadcast television.

Having pioneered the production and placement of video material into the world of broadcast news, we have developed efficient methods of placing video reports for broadcast by national, regional and global television channels. Among other clients, we have provided broadcast video services over a period of years for the United Nations, World Health Organization, World Health Communication Associates, British Foreign Office, European Commission and many other international organisations and corporations.

Web video

In addition to television broadcast, audio-visual material has become important for web communication, delivering programmes, reports and live conference/distance participation to a global or selected audience.

In both broadcast and web we can produce entire initiatives, or provide specific products and tools.
